

We are Community Health Workers.

What Can We Do for You?

Community Health Workers are members of the community they serve and have been trained in public health to serve as a bridge between communities, health care systems, and state health departments. Our goal is to assist community members find the best path to wellness.

We can provide:

- * Referrals for community resource assistance
- * Registration for COVID vaccines (first, second and third/booster doses)
- * Registration for flu, tetanus, shingles, and other important vaccinations
- * Community information clinics
- * Educational talks and guest speakers
- * Representation at resource fairs and health fairs

A CHW can help business with insurance quota for health topic discussions and meet potential discounts offered by insurance.

CHW's can assist with COVID vaccine clinics and provide pre-clinic education as well as information sessions by phone, e-mail, or in person. All services are offered on site, at off-site locations, virtually, or individually by appointment.

To arrange to have a CHW provide any of these services, or to discuss other issues, situations and ideas, contact:
